

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

PORTRAIT GROUP

HARRINGTON MANN

A PAINTING BY HARRINGTON MANN

HARRINGTON MANN, whose charming portrait of the children of George X. McLanahan, of Washington, is reproduced herewith, is an English artist who has, however, spent quite a little time in recent years in this country, and whose work is well known here. He is a member of the International Society of Portrait Painters, the National Portrait

Society and the International Society of Sculptors, Painters and Gravers of London. In the National Gallery at Victoria, Melbourne, Australia, and in the Municipal Museum of Ghent, Belgium, he is represented, as well as in other public and private collections. Mr. Mann has made a specialty of children's portraits which he paints with unusual felicity and charm.